

Drawings from the New World:

What did Europeans see when they looked at the New World
and the Native Americans?

Collected by Peter Pappas ~ www.peterpappas.com

Europeans were surprised by what they found in the New World. They saw many new places, plants, animals, people, and activities. They sometimes had difficulty describing what they encountered.

Pretend you had traveled to the New World during the Age of Exploration. Draw a picture for your friends at home to describe what you have seen. Refer to the information in the documents as if you had seen these things.

Visitor From Outer Space:

What did Europeans see when they looked at the New World
and the Native Americans?

Europeans were surprised by what they found in the New World. They saw many new places, plants, animals, people, and activities. They sometimes had difficulty describing what they encountered.

This will take some imagination, but pretend an alien came from outer space to visit your community. How might they misinterpret what they saw when they reported back to their home planet. List three items in their report. Include how what they reported it and what they were actually describing. Have some fun and use your imagination!

Sample Report from Alien Visitor

Alien's Report: A group of earthlings were standing in an open field. They were running in many different directions. They seemed to be attacking a round object and attempting to crush it with their legs. On a few occasions one of them picked it up and threw it to the ground in an attempt to break it. They finally trapped the object in a net and some of them screamed.

What they actually saw: A soccer game

Pretend you're an alien from outer space and write a "report" on something you see on earth:
